Citation Generators, Style Manuals, & Writing Guides

Citation Generators

Citation Generators format citation data (i.e. author, title, year, volume, publisher, pages etc.) in a specific style (MLA, APA, etc).

The Citation Builder APA and MLA and CBE/CSE Style from North Carolina State University. Illustrates differences among several major styles of citing information sources.

DocsCite (Arizona State University) - Generates citations in APA and MLA formats for government publications.

EasyBib - Supports the latest edition of the MLA free of charge. Formats internet based sources as well as print. EasyBib APA has small yearly fee.

NoodleBib Express - Free for a small number of citations. Complete a series of questions to create formatted citations in MLA or APA format. Full range of citation types. Use Noodlebib for a larger number of citations. This requires a small subscription fee: $4 for 4 months. Products of Noodle Tools.

Son of Citation Machine - Supports MLA, APA and the Chicago Style Manuals.

Stylewizart - Provides APA style. The MLA is currently under development.

Choose a citation generator, answer a few questions, and the generator will create your citation in a correct format. All you need to do is copy and paste the citation into your paper.

Note: Many disciplines and instructors require a very specific format. Make sure you know what the expectations are for writing assignments. The various citation generators will create citations in differing formats (APA, MLA, CBE/CSE, Chicago, etc.), but you have to choose the proper one for your work.
